Art does more than just add color. It provides context to an evolving conversation. The Homewood Artwalk beckons residents and visitors to delve into the history, culture, and aspirations of Homewood. I spearheaded this project, resulting in 13 captivating murals scattered throughout the neighborhood.

Joining me were three immensely talented local artists: Janel Young, Juliandra Jones, and Kamara Townes. The Artwalk proudly showcases Black pride and excellence, which serve as the bedrock of Homewood's past, present, and future.
Black Flowerz is a project supported by Riverlife PGH and the Office of Public Art. This initiative was born out of the BLACK LIVES MATTER movement, following my collaboration with local graffiti artists to revamp the white-led BLM mural at the Allegheny Riverwalk. The final outcome, Black Flowers, showcases 12 regal representations of notable Black individuals from Pittsburgh.

The esteemed list includes Liberty Kinsel, Billy Porter, Dejuan Blair, Wiz Khalifa, Kilolo Luckett, Alma SpeedFox, Nisha Blackwell, Camerin "Camo" Nesbit, Marie Caldwell Dawson, Tymere Robinson, Nate Mitchell, and Dr. Ayisha Morgan Lee. Through this project, we aim to honor these remarkable individuals in a grand and meaningful way, acknowledging their contributions and achievements.
I have been actively involved in the internationally renowned Miami Art Basel, primarily through the Wynwood Mural Festival. This longstanding festival upholds the tradition of honoring street art and independent culture in the Wynwood Art District during Art Basel Miami. Throughout the years, I have successfully created two murals, each requiring the use of a boom lift. This year, I am thrilled to be returning to Miami Art Basel to complete my third mural, and I will also have a featured booth at Spectrum Miami.
